Local Man Leaves for Dallas Convention

J. L. Green left last night for Dallas, Texas, where he goes to attend four-day session of the National Clearers and Dyers convention.

According to a statement from Mr. Green, delegates will gather in that city from all parts of the United States, where they meet for their annual convention.

Farmer Is Held, Salesman Sought

NASHVILLE, Jan. 21.—(AP)—A. M. Owens, aged about 45, farmer to Delight, was arrested at Murfreesboro yesterday and H. W. Guise of Omaha, Neb., is being sought for obtaining money under false pretenses.

It is said that Guise came to this vicinity about 10 days ago and induced Owens to accompany him through the country and introduce him to farmers as a representative of the Consumers Purchasing Company of Omaha. The pair collected orders from farmers for groceries at wholesale prices, promising to deliver the goods the next day, declaring that they had a carload of groceries at Nashville.

They secured about $200 worth of orders and are said to have bought a few groceries from Nashville merchants and to have delivered a small portion of the orders to the farmers. When the remainder of the orders were not delivered, several farmers became suspicious and found that their checks had been cashed. It was found that no such concern existed at Nashville.

Owens was released under $1,000 bond and will be given a preliminary hearing here today.

College Dean Is Called 'Snooper'

Dr. Scott H. Goodnight, above, dean of men of the University of Wisconsin, is under attack by Prof. William Elmer Leonard, a member of the faculty, who wrote a letter to President Glenn Frank denouncing the alleged "snooping tactics" of Dean Goodnight in checking up on the conduct of students.

J. L. Powell In Narrow Escape

Local Man Receives Deep Gash In Collision Yesterday.

J. L. Powell, a resident of this city for many years, narrowly escaped death yesterday when hit by an automobile and thrown from a buggy in which he was riding.

The accident occurred near Brookwood school late yesterday afternoon. He was returning to his home here, where Tommy Ruggles, local high school youth, was driving down the street in his automobile, with dim lights and virtually blinded, apparently did not see Mr. Powell.

The force from the impact threw him from the buggy and onto the pavement. He suffered a deep gash in his head and received bruises around his arms and shoulders. Physicians were called, and medical aid was rendered. According to a report this morning he was resting nicely, although his condition is regarded as serious.

Mrs. Franklin and Children In Need

Wife of "Mystery Man" Near Starvation, Seeks Aid.

STUTTGART, Jan. 21.—An appeal for food and clothing for the destitute family of Connie Franklin, described as starving in the Red Hill communities, 14½ miles south of here, was made yesterday in Stuttgart newspapers. Franklin's wife, Mrs. Alberta Rogers, and his three small children, Lillie, aged 9; Geneva, 7; and Edna, 5, are utterly destitute and have suffered much from the cold during the recent cold wave.

Ernest Sampson, school teacher at Red Hill, said today that he had taken the family some food himself but that he found it hard to provide for his own family and the Rogers family at the same time.

The mother and children live in a tumble-down shack in which the temperature is near the freezing point in frigid weather, and have insufficient clothing as well as an empty larder.

Mr. Sampson declared that Mrs. Rogers has as yet received no part of the money which the "mystery man" had supposedly made from his returns from his stage appearance. A generous contribution to the appeal is expected here.

Some weeks ago Mrs. Franklin filed suit against Connie asking that he contribute to the support of herself and children.

Franklin appeared in vaunderbilt after he had testified at Mountain View at the trial of four men who had been held for his supposed murder. The four were cleared.

Contracts To Be Awarded On Roads

Highway Commission To Award Contracts On 12 Projects.

LITTLE ROCK, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Seventy-nine road bids were received by the State Highway commission on 12 road and bridge projects involving construction costing $850,000. Five grading projects on which bids were refused were withdrawn because high water prevented the completion of the estimates.

The commission will award the contracts on the twelve projects this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Hope Boy Enlists In United States Army

Doyle H. Minor, son of Mrs. Ella Minor of 320 Washington street, enlisted in the Army at Little Rock, on January 18, 1930. Mr. Minor chose for his assignment the Engineers at Fort Riley, Kan.

This is one of the largest, best located and most beautiful military post in the United States. Here is located the cavalry school, which without doubt is the finest mounted school in the world.

For the entertainment of the soldiers there are three excellent baseball fields an indoor and an outdoor swimming pool, tennis courts and a moving picture theatre are maintained.

Junior Students Present Program

Superintendent Paisley Lectures To Graduating Class.

On Friday morning January 17 the Eight A class of the local Junior high school had charge of the chapel exercises. The program was a farewell to the rest of the student body and faculty, as most of the 8A's anticipate going to the Senior High on January 27.

Miss Doris Boyett as chairman of the program committee presented the following program:

Miss Inez Allen, as valedictorian gave a splendid talk on "Success" in which she pointed out to the remaining students the many hardships and sacrifices one had to undergo before success is yours. Miss Allen has been a star pupil all through her entire Junior High career.

Merlin Coop as historian revealed many interesting facts concerning the history of the class since entering the Junior High, some which had been forgotten and the memory was recalled by the clever presentation.

The most interesting feature of the program was the class prophecy presented by Miss Winnie Lee Floyd. The plot was revealed in an interesting way the time being 25 years hence. It involved the life of everyone of the class also the members of the faculty.

A unique feature of the program was the giftman, Miss Liana Fritz, who presented to each member of the 8A class a gift representing their most prominent characteristic. The ones receiving the gifts were asked to carry on their work and represent them in the future in the Junior High.

Miss Fern Garner, Ilen Lou Howden and Inez Allen gave several interesting readings.

D. L. Paisley, Superintendent of Schools concluded the program with a very interesting talk on Robert E. Lee who birthday was celebrated on January 18. Mr. Paisley also gave some special advice to the graduating class concerning their future and how they could attain success by application and concentration from the very beginning of your school career.

The officers and members of the 8A class are as follows: Wingfield Stroud, president; Ellen Lou Bauden vice president; Fern Gaines, secretary and Inez Allen, treasurer.

Inez Allen, George Robinson, Chas. Andre, Hoyette Andres, Steve Atkins, Herlaiese Boswell, Ellen Lou Bowden, Davis Boyette, Inez Coffman, Merlin Coop, Alton Easterling, Elizabeth Evans, Frances Ezon, Winnie Lee Floyd, Diann Fritz, Jessie Lee Garcia, Fern Garner, Owen Hollis, Stewart Hunt, Wilma Jones, Hilliges Miller, Connie Parsons, Hattie Mae Prince, Clark Reynerson, Don Reynerson, Dennis Richards, Lois Mae Rogers, Mable Schneider, Shirley Schooley, Willis Smith, Wingfield Stroud, Paul Simmons, Raynold Urban, Dorothy Walters, Arthur Whitehurst and Thomas Wilson.

At the close of the chapel exercises the class presented to the school a beautiful wall painting and an electric light fixture for the office of the school.

Magnolia Woman Dies From Burns

Blaze Proves Fatal for Mrs. Martha Jane Baker.

MAGNOLIA, Jan. 21.—Burns sustained Saturday night when her clothing caught fire from a cooking stove proved fatal for Mrs. Martha Jane Baker, who died here Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Baker received the fatal burns early Saturday night when the blaze from a cooking stove on which she was preparing the evening meal caught her dress. Her screams attracted Mr. and Mrs. Sam Scott, who lived in the same house.

When the two dashed into the kitchen, they found Mrs. Baker a mass of flames. Scott extinguished the fire by throwing a blanket around the woman, but not before she was burned horribly about the face and body.

Physicians were summoned immediately after the accident but little hope was held for her recovery even at that time. Her condition gradually became worse Sunday and she died early Monday afternoon.

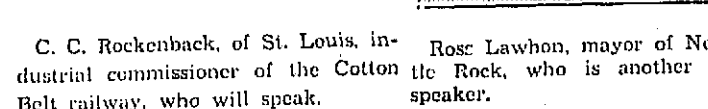

Leading Figures at Arkadelphia Meeting

Miss Pauline Cox, of Gurdon, who will be crowned Queen of South Arkansas at the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce convention in Arkadelphia Friday, January 24.

C. C. Rockenback, of St. Louis, industrial commissioner of the Cotton Belt railway, who will speak.

Ross Lawhorn, mayor of North Little Rock, who is another program speaker.

Two Are Held After Slashing Woman

Mrs. Gordon Is Suffering From A Severe Knife Wound.

HOUSTON, Ark., Jan. 21.—George "Smoky" Gordon, 37, and his brother-in-law, Jim Adams, 37, were in the Sevier county jail at DeQueen, Monday and Gordon's wife was suffering a severe knife wound as the result of an altercation at Gordon's home here Sunday night.

The two men are being held in the county jail at DeQueen pending preliminary hearing on charges of drunkenness, disturbing the peace and discharging firearms in the city limits. They were arrested early Monday following a complaint by neighbors.

Mrs. Gordon was said to have received a wound in her arm when she attempted to separate the two men when they came to blows. The knife was said to have been wielded by Gordon.

May Relieve Conjestion In the Federal Courts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Attorney General Wickersham of the Law Enforcement Commission had appeared before a House Judicial subcommittee decided to draft three bills to carry out the commissions recommendation to increase the power of the U. S. Commissioners, who handle misdemeanor cases in an effort to relieve congestion of the federal courts.

Dean Roscoe, a member of the commission appeared for questioning. Representative Christopherson, republican, South Dakota, said Wickersham had cleared up the doubt held by the subcommittee as to the constitutionality of the proposed bills.

Families Who Refuse To Leave Homes, A Problem

150,000 Acres In Four Counties Will Be Under Water.

FLATBOATS BUILT

Refugees Being Sheltered In Box Cars and In Tents.

BLITHEVILLE, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Families who refused to leave their homes in face of the rising flood waters presented problems to relief workers in the Big Lake section of Mississippi county today.

Water, near or in the homes and a heavy flow of water approaching from a break in the St. Francis river levee near Holcomb, Mo., Red Cross workers estimated today that more than 150 families, still refusing to leave their homes, would be in the danger area.

Six large flat bottom boats are being built today and will be ready for use tomorrow in bringing out refugees. They can make one trip a day, but a capacity of twenty people is all that may be carried.

Approximately 50,000 acres in Mississippi county are under water today as the result of a break in the Big Lake levee. Water from the St. Francis river break near Holcomb, Mo., is expected to reach this section by Thursday, and it is estimated that more than 150,000 acres in Mississippi, Pointsett, Craighead and Crittenton counties will be flooded.

More than 50 families have deserted their homes before the rising water in the Big Lake area and are being sheltered in box cars here and at Dell, a small village near here. Other refugees brought out will be taken care of in Blitheville and in the one hundred National Guard tents, which arrived here today from Little Rock.

Rains Hamper Canal Survey

But Engineering Work Continues To Progress Despite Handicap.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Survey of the proposed Nicaragua canal route is progressing despite such handicaps as rainfall at the rate of a severe and one half inches a day.

Major, Dan I. Sultan, commanding the survey, reported to the War Department he had disposed of his engineering troops so that work is being done on both the east and west ends of the proposed canal.

Nature and climate impose severe difficulties upon the party. Company "A" of the Engineer battalion moved overland by ox-train to reach the Pacific coast where camp has been established for survey of Brito Harbor and examination of the proposed route from the lake westward to the sea. Company "B" is in camp at Greytown on the Caribbean to survey that harbor.

Communication among the scattered units is maintained by four portable radio stations erected by the Signal Corps. Sultan said the fall of 15 inches of rain in two days had compelled temporary discontinuance of some work. Nicaraguans generally have shown enthusiasm for the canal project according to Sultan's report and other sources of information.

Arkansas Farmer's Editor In The City

Stanley Andrews, editor of the Arkansas Farmer, Little Rock, is in Hope today making a tour of Hempstead county with County Farm Agent Lynn Smith. They are interviewing local farmers on agricultural problems and new methods of production.

Wales Films Own Air Epic of Experiences

SUNNINGDALE, Eng., Jan. 21.—(AP)—Everybody in Hollywood has made at least one air epic, so the prince of Wales had to film one too.

Although he's rather late with his, a safe bet he would have no difficulty selling it in the American film capital, for he is the star and the supervisor of this aerial opus. But the film is for his private collection.

The picture opens with the prince climbing into the cockpit of his first plane, all set for a series of flying lessons. In subsequent scenes he is shown in full flight—himself and not a double—registering the various emotions: a prince naturally feels when cartwheeling among the clouds.

A flying officer was his cameraman during production.

$22,000 To Be Spent On Ouachita and Black

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The War department allotted a sum of $22,000 for dredging on the Black river in Arkansas and Louisiana and for repairs on two dredges used on the Ouachita river.

Elimination of Wood Alcohol Would Destroy Important Industries

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Representative Crampson, republican, Michigan, a dry leader, asserted in his house today that the enactment of a bill to eliminate wood alcohol as a denaturant in industries would not only destroy enforcement of the national prohibition, but would destroy highly important industries as well.

To Receive Bids On New Theatre

Work On Open Air Stage Must Be Completed By June 1.

FAYETTEVILLE, Jan. 21.—T. C. Carlson, business manager of the University of Arkansas, announced Saturday that he is ready to receive bids from contractors for the construction of an open air theatre on the University campus. Bids will be received till 2 p. m., February 5. Work on the theatre must be completed by June 1, 1930.

The open air theatre is the gift of the national Chi Omega sorority to the University of Arkansas where it was founded in 1885. The theatre will be of concrete and will cost 2,750 people. It will be located west of the University shops, the back of the stage being north of Dickson street and one hundred feet of Buchanan street. The back row of seats will join the curved road entering the campus from Ozark avenue at Dickson street.

The stage of the new theatre will be approximately a semi-circle with a gross diameter of one hundred feet. A square pylon, bearing a bronze memorial tablet, will be at each corner of the stage. Extending in a semi-circle from pylon to pylon on the stage will be 14 columns. The stage will be eight feet across, inside the colonnade.

An orchestra pit will be in front of the stage, and in front of that will be a grassy area, seventy feet in diameter, which can be used for special dancing or May fete, or can be filled with additional seats. The concrete seats, forming the theatre proper, will cover a semi-circular area about two hundred feet in diameter. The seating space will be divided into five sections.

Pylons, columns, and copings on the stage will be trimmed with Carthage cut stone, and the tops of the columns will have a pergola effect. Across the front of the stage will be the names, in cut stone panels, of the five founders of Chi Omega: Simonds, Holcombe, Richardson, Boles, and Vincenholter.

Dressing rooms and storage space for stage properties will be provided beneath the stage. There will be two entrances to the stage from the ground, one back of each pylon. The front of the stage will be equipped for different lighting effects. The center line of the whole theatre will be at approximately a 45 degree angle from Dickson street, the stage facing the west. The architects are Jamieson and Spearle of St. Louis, Mo.

Chi Omega was organized April 5, 1895 by Misses Jobelle Holcombe, Jean Vincenholter, Ina May Boles and Alice Cary Simonds, under the direction of Dr. Charles Richardson. With a list of 87 chapters today, Chi Omega is said to be the largest national women's Greek letter organization in the United States. In addition to the active chapters, there are 43 alumnae chapters of Chi Omega.

This is the first time in the history of Greek letter social organizations that a national sorority has presented a memorial of its foundation to the institution where it was founded.

Escaped Bandit Captured Today

Was One of Five Who Took Part In $300,000 Robbery.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 21.—(AP)—Stanley Przydy, said to be the last of five bandits who took part in the $300,000 Trenupian Carson robbery in Buffalo New York, last November 14, was arrested in his apartment here today by Deputy Sheriff and private detective, after a search which led through the eastern seaboard.

Przydy and a woman companion, who is thought to be Ethel Mason, in Buffalo, were arrested as they entered his apartment early today. "They must be some mistake gentlemen," the man said as he faced a pistol of D. C. Coleman and deputy E. H. Zeno.

When taken to the county jail Coleman said Przydy admitted his identity. Held on robbery charges while arrangements are being made to return to Buffalo, he will be well guarded.

Four members of the gang were arrested and convicted on robbery charges, and the escape of the fifth and with little hopes to recover the stolen loot, a nation-wide search was intensified and detectives brought in to the case.

Five Great Naval Powers Begin the Opening Session

First Meeting Opened With Impressive Dignity In Royal Gallery

KING GEORGE SPEAKS

Meeting Next Thursday Will Be A Private Affair.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—A solemn call which reached around the world, the five great naval powers began the opening session of the conference today for the further limitation of armaments on the sea. The first meeting was opened formally with impressive dignity in the Royal Gallery of West Minister by King George. No diplomatic bombshell disturbed the session, and the nation declared they were ready to the work to begin in the interest of all.

When the opening address, which were broadcast by a world-wide hook up, had been concluded, the conference adjourned to reconvene Thursday at 10 o'clock. Tomorrow the delegates will meet for a short discussion to clear the way for the meeting Thursday, which will be a private one.

The spokesman of Great Britain urged the United States, Japan, Italy and the British dominions be joined in a course of hopeful prediction.

Doomed Negroes On Witness Stand

Testify Against Third Man Accused of Planning Double Murder.

ASHDOWN, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Two negroes awaiting death in the electric chair took the witness stand for the state yesterday to accuse Bud Nolan, another negro, of being the leader of a trio that killed Bud Morgan, 50, and Ed Dudley, 22, while farmers, near Foreman, last December 22.

Nolan is being tried on a first degree murder charge, and is charged with the death of Morgan. He is under an indictment charging first degree murder for the slaying of Dudley. The two negroes who testified against him today were Mack Brown and John Green, sentenced to the electric chair for slaying the two white men.

Brown, sentenced to die in the electric chair at the state penitentiary on March 21 for the murder of the two white farmers, repeated the story he told the jury trying him last week.

He testified that Nolan led the two men at the point of a gun and ordered him to strike them with an ax. Brown testified that Nolan threatened to kill him if he did not hit the men. He charged that the plot to rob and kill the men was formulated by Nolan.

Green, the second negro awaiting execution for the slayings, substantiated Brown's story. He testified, further, that a short time before the robbery Nolan had bragged of how many men he had killed and of what a "bad man" he was.

Ben shaver, appointed by the court to defend Nolan, said Nolan would deny being present when the men were killed and would prove a complete alibi through a statement of a negro woman, Berrie Hatten, that he was with her at the time.

Carolina College Plans Second School On Wheels

SALISBURY, N. C., Jan. 21.—(AP)—Catawba college's "summer school on wheels" was so successful in 1929 that a similar traveling school is planned this year.

Last summer the travelers journeyed to the Pacific coast and back in 15 buses, including diners, sleepers, truck and pilot cars.

He is seeking a new fuel for internal combustion engines, but the neighbors are suspicious. They sniffed at alcohol, which he uses for a base, and called the police.

The police came, looked over the plan, and left. The neighbors called the sheriff. A squad of deputies came, looked and left.

The neighbors had that try-again spirit and phoned federal prohibition agents. They also put on a come-look-go act.

Now there's nobody else for the neighbors to call.

The Sacrifice of Public Service

NEWS-STORIES in The Star report the resignation of D. L. Paisley, for fourteen years city superintendent of public schools in Hope, and the succession of Miss Beryl Henry, for the last nine years principal of Hope High School.

Such terms of public service impress on one the fact that men and women who go into the teaching profession indeed give their lives to it. The value of our public institutions lies in their ability to attract men and women of the calibre of Mr. Paisley and Miss Henry and hold them over the period of years so necessary to maintain a stable and efficient educational system.

It is noteworthy that Mr. Paisley, in his two decades of public service, has seen vast strides taken by the state in the cause of free education. And at the end of twenty years there is someone to pick up the burden as he leaves it to carry on Hope's reputation for supporting good and efficient public schools.

The teaching profession is one of the important units in the backbone of American democracy. It is hard to imagine a situation, however adverse, in which the public schoolroom would not be adequately filled. And yet the state and nation owe a perpetual debt to their public school faculties. We owe it to them to be progressive, so that their work will be constantly more appealing to the youth from whom the teachers of tomorrow must be obtained.

They tell us this is a materialistic age. People are not supposed to be as self-sacrificing today as they were yesterday. Yet the call of public service in our free schools continues to be heard. Men and women more interested in the technique of the task of training a young nation; than in mere money, continue to volunteer for a life-time campaign.

If there is one thing that the city of Hope can do for the public schools in the coming year, it ought to be the construction of a modern high school building. The high school nowadays is a veritable show place for the average community no larger than Hope. We realize the city has been under heavy expense to complete its new junior high school building; but a new central building has become an imperative public need.

If plans for a new high school structure can be worked out in 1930-31 there will be cause for a public celebration.

How Crime Is Increasing

SINCE we have a national passion for statistics, trusting confidently that columns of figures will enlighten us on every phase of our activity, the figures recently issued by the Travelers Indemnity Company in regard to crime are of more than passing interest.

The figures are a trifle discouraging. They seem to show quite clearly that we are steadily becoming a more lawless nation—and this, too, without especial reference to offenses against the prohibition act.

For example: from 1910 to 1926 the population of 96 leading prisons increased 71 per cent, although the country's population in that period increased only 27 per cent. During this period, the crimes of burglary, robbery, theft and larceny contributed a large part of the increase in prison commitments.

Residence burglaries show no falling off, despite recent reports that lucrative new crimes such as automobile stealing and bootlegging had caused many second-story workers to abandon their old fields. The Travelers' insurance records show that about the same percentage of houses are burglarized now as in the old days. In fact, in towns of less than 50,000 population there has been a sharp increase in burglaries.

During the last two years the number of bank robberies has increased, while bank burglaries have diminished. According to the Travelers, "this indicates that the holdup men have become bolder and that they have found it easier and more profitable to make a haul in broad daylight than under the cover of night, when a forcible entry has to be made. A study of bank robberies also indicates that in practically every case banks are robbed in early business hours soon after doors are opened, or during the noon hour."

These are interesting revelations. An intensive national study of such statistics might help us immeasurably in our war on crime.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

By RODNEY DUTCHER
WASHINGTON—Anyone who has ever seen the stocky form of Senator Hiram Johnson of California probably suspect that he would be a hard man to bowl over. And that's the way it seems to work out.

The gents who collaborated in the latest attempt to do that to Hiram have once more been boomeranged by their own petard. The major participants were President Hoover and Johnson's colleague, Senator Samuel Hays of California. There is a fourth name involved, one with the alliterative name of Alf Otis, one of the best minds in the prohibition enforcement service.

Briefly, the Otis story is that the president, with the agreement of Senator Hays, appointed Alf to replace one of Johnson's political friends as collector of internal revenue in the San Francisco district and that it was found that Otis was a resident of Maryland and not of the San Francisco district as required by law if he were to take the plum. But it's the background of the story and the incident's place as a high spot in the long-standing Hoover-Johnson feud that make it worth a few chuckles.

He Thrives on Hatred

The past presidential aspirations of Hiram have a tragic history, but as senator from California and a tough customer locally he has always thrived and till does, despite the hatred of presidents. As one of the loudest anti-league senators he survived the Wilson anti-party. He fought vigorously for the Republican nomination in 1920 and was elected but survived Harding, the winner. In 1924 he made a wild, quixotic attempt to grab the renomination from Coolidge and in the primaries lost even his own state. Coolidge didn't forgive him and Johnson received no more patronage.

In fact, sometimes perfectly terrible persons were appointed to federal jobs in California in order to avoid taking care of any of Johnson's friends.

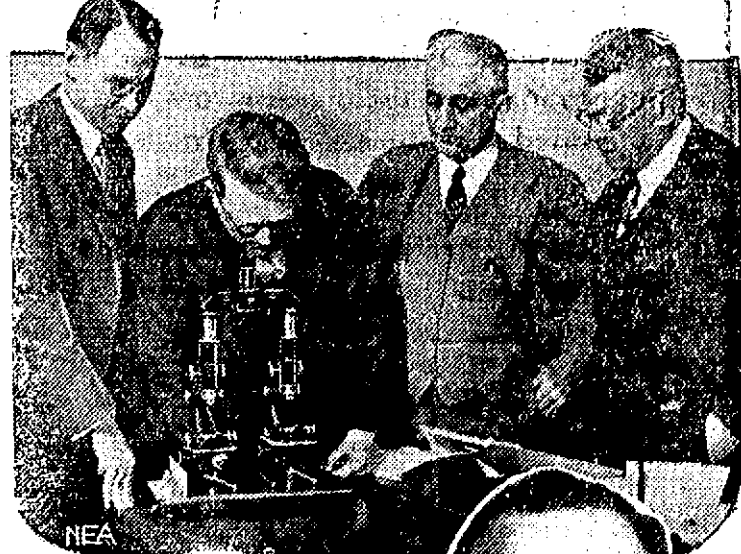

But Cal went and Hiram remained. The latter's feud with Hoover had been simmering along all these years, ever since he had given Herbert such a bad trimming in the California primaries of 1920. Now Hoover was out after the presidency in 1928 and in the same year Johnson was up for re-election. Well, it would not do either any good if they sank their teeth into each other at such a time, so they didn't. Hiram agreed to support Herbert and Herbert's friends loudly conceded that Hiram was a good old guy, after all.

But the Johnson support turned out to be theatrical. Apparently the Hooverites expected him to go roaring through the progressive strongholds of the middlewest for the national ticket. Instead, he stayed in California and roared only for himself. He never mentioned Hoover, although explaining that he was for "the head of the ticket" because of party loyalty.

Meanwhile, the Johnson feud in California was making a bad name for the president's reelection. Johnson's indifference to the presidential race and allowed their employees to wear Smith buttons. Senator Shortridge, of course, whooped as loudly for Hoover as his voice would permit.

Well, you can imagine that there wasn't any more of a place for Johnson at the pie counter under Hoover than under Coolidge. The next thing anyone heard in the old feud was Johnson's mighty blast from the Senate floor accusing Hoover of inconsistency, cowardice and whatnot on the tariff legislation. And after that the White House dinner incident, when Johnson was the only member of the Foreign Relations Committee not invited.

Trace Death Gun to Al Capone

The sub-machine gun with which Frankie Yale, wealthy Brooklyn racketeer, was slain belonged to "Scarface" Al Capone, overlord of Chicago's underworld, according to Police Commissioner Whelan of New York. Bullets taken from Yale's body and bullets found in the victims of the Chicago St. Valentine day massacre both revealed marking of this weapon, Whelan said, has been traced to Capone. The identification was made by a board of experts, pictured above. From left to right, Major Calvin Goddard, firearms expert; Voroner Herman N. Bundesen of Chicago, Inspector Stanley F. It Isn't Lincoln

NEA Cleveland Bureau
No, you guessed wrong—this isn't Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday anniversary is observed on Feb. 12, but a new picture of Judge Charles Bull, famous as Lincoln's "doubt" who is now on a lecture tour in the east. Judge Bull was born in Texas, the son of Confederate soldiers, but his resemblance to Lincoln is so strong that he often takes Lincoln roles in the movies in Hollywood, Calif., where he now resides.

Texas Lady Says Pains Stopped Coming After She Had Taken Cardui.

Terrell, Texas.—"I was run-down and nervous, and for several months my health had not been good," says Mrs. Louis Wieland, of this place. "I was up one day and down the next. I never felt like doing anything."

"I worried all the time, and could not sleep well at night. Periodically I would suffer from pains in my back and sides. I would have awful headaches, and would feel dull and dizzy."

"My sister had taken Cardui, and she persuaded me to try it. She said to me one day: 'If you will only try it, you will see for yourself how much good it will do you.' So I got a bottle of Cardui and began to take it. It was not long until I felt fine. I got stronger, and my nerves did not bother me any more."

"The pains stopped coming in my back, and I could do my work without any trouble. I think Cardui is a fine medicine."

Cardui is a reconstructive tonic, extracted from herbs of long-known medicinal value.

MENUS FOR THE FAMILY

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

WHEN you think there is "nothing new under the sun," try combining veal and pork. So many women are dependent on beef, veal and pork for their meat supply that the monotony sometimes becomes overwhelming.

Veal and pork are used together with excellent effect. Both the meats require thorough cooking, which means a long-time cooking process suitable for well done dishes. Veal lacks fat while pork is rich in this material. In this way, one meat supplements the other to produce a delicious whole.

A breast of veal stuffed with bulk sausage or finely chopped pork gains richness of flavor. Chopped veal and pork combined with bread crumbs and "bound" with milk and egg make delicious patty-cakes for luncheon. Pork and veal en brochette is another inviting luncheon dish dependent on the combination for its flavor and delicacy. A meat loaf is more desirable made of the mixture of the two meats than if made of one alone. The pork loaf is too rich and the veal loaf too dry and tasteless.

The following rule for rolled breast of veal is economical and interesting for a company dinner.

Roll of Breast of Veal
One breast of veal, 1 pound sausage meat or finely chopped pork, 3-4 cup rice, 1 tablespoon grated cheese, 1 large onion, 1 carrot, 1 turnip, parsley, thyme, bay leaf, pepper, salt.

The seasonings are important. Sausage is usually well seasoned so very little salt and pepper will be needed if it is used. If plain chopped pork is used, additional salt will be necessary.

Remove bones and tendons from veal and trim neatly. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and spread evenly with pork. Roll tightly and bind with a stout cord. Put bone and trimmings of veal in kettle and add sliced vegetables, herbs, salt and pepper. Put roll of meat on top and add water to cover vegetables but not meat. Roll. Cover closely and simmer two hours. Baste meat frequently with stock in kettle and add water as necessary. Remove meat from kettle and strain stock. There should be three cups. Boil rice in salted water for 15 minutes. Drain and pour several quarts of boiling water through rice. Drain. Return stock to kettle and bring to boiling point. When bubbling rapidly, add rice and meat and simmer, closely covered, until stock is absorbed. Remove meat and cut cord in several places. Undrained, arrange rice in border on a hot platter, sprinkle with cheese, and place roll of meat in the center. Garnish with parsley and serve.

"Love Parade" Comes To Saenger Wednesday

Jeanette MacDonald, a charming leading lady new to motion picture audiences, although well known to followers of the New York musical comedy stage, makes her debut on the audible screen in Maurice Chevalier's second starring picture, "The Love Parade," an original operetta written especially for the screen.
Tall, graceful, undeniably beautiful, and the possessor of an unusually fine singing voice, this comely young actress gives every promise of being one of the "finds" of the season. Her gracious manner and soft speaking voice and last it be forgotten, her ability to wear gorgeous clothes, makes her an ideal selection for the leading feminine role in "The Love Parade."

For in this latest Paramount production, Miss MacDonald is cast as the beautiful and unmarried Queen of the mythical kingdom of Sylvania.

Maurice Chevalier, Jeanette
MacDonald in "The Love Parade"
A Paramount Picture

Her inability to select a husband worries not only her cabinet, ministers and private maid, but everything begins to take on a rosy glow when Maurice Chevalier in the person of Count Alfred is recalled from Paris to Sylvania because of his many and varied amorous adventures. The Queen, for these things even happen to Queens, is smitten with the dashing, reckless Alfred. And he, man of the world, succumbs to the charms of the beautiful Queen. Their courtship is a merry one, abounding in subtle comedy, ardent love-making and delightful singing. And like all royal marriages they live happily forever after. That is, with certain reservations which the impetuous Alfred humorously insists on. All in all, it is a fascinating comedy of the post delightful pattern and in which Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald reveal as gayly as it is possible to imagine.

Miss MacDonald sings "My Dream Lover," and with Chevalier also sings
"My Love Parade" and "Anything to Please the Queen." Chevalier, of course, sings several numbers including "Nobody's Using It Now," and "Paris Stay the Same." Other songs featured are "Let's Be Common" sung by Lupino Lane and Lillian Roth, and "March of the Grenadiers," rendered by a rousing male chorus.
Ernst Lubitsch, the famous director of "The Marriage Circle" and "The Patriot," directed "The Love Parade." Ciclor Schertzing composed the music. Clifford Grey wrote the lyrics and Guy Bolton wrote the screen play. "The Love Parade" comes to the Saenger theatre on Wednesday for three days.

No Dog Hospital For Captain!

He Had His Leg
Amputated in Real One

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 21.—A dog's life isn't half bad, provided you've a dog that has picked out the right kind of mistress.

Captain is a big, blue-blooded St.
Bernard dog owned by Mrs. Maurice Gross. He can testify that there are times when a dog gets very good breaks indeed.

Some time ago Mrs. Gross fell sick, and her physician, Dr. A. P. Condon, found it a hard job to cure her.
He surmised that she would not get well until some hidden worry that was preying on her mind was set right.

So he began asking questions, and he learned she was upset about Captain. Captain had been romping about and had injured a leg. She had taken him to the best veterinarians she could find and they had been unable to cure him. The kindest thing, they said, would be to shoot him.

Dr. Condon promptly decided that the best way to cure Mrs. Gross was to cure Captain first.

And so, one morning, a regular ambulance came up to the Gross home.
Captain was put on a stretcher, taken to the ambulance and whisked off to a regular hospital where human beings were treated. There he was lugged straight to the operating room and put on the operating table.

Dr. Condon, assisted by trained nurses who gave Captain an anaesthetic and counted his heart beats, performed the operation. Captain was under either 22 minutes. When he came to again, back home, his bad leg had been removed as neatly as anyone could wish.

Now Captain is recovering, on a diet of fresh eggs, meat, milk and cream. An artificial leg made especially to his measure, with hair the same color as his, has been constructed by a German specialist and is now on its way to Omaha. And Captain, far from being sick, has gained back 40 of the 70 pounds he lost while he was ill.

And—oh yes! Mrs. Gross has recovered, too.

Captain shows the leg that Dr. Condon amputated.

THE "CATERPILLAR" SCHOOL

Begins Thursday, January 23

Months of preparation and planning have preceded this short course in the care and operation and uses of tractors and tractor-operated machines. Now we're ready!

This is a school conducted not to sell but to tell—a service to owners, operators, anyone interested in the subject—the community in general.

Practical, helpful answers to your particular problems. How to save men, money, minutes.
How to do your work better, quicker, cheap-

HOOPS SLIDES

Slack and the Horseshoe
Back in 1883, the Boston ball team was in a row. That isn't strange for a Boston ball club, but the team had to begin somewhere and they had a start as any.
The ball team was in Detroit after the first straight defeat, and that was the players were parked on the sidewalk in front of the old Russell House. As Mr. Wrigley said to the players after the 1889 world series, "things looked pretty well ginned up."
A truck passed and one of the players, Paul Radford, one of the players, went out and picked up the ball. On the back of the shoe was the name "O. Winn," its maker. Acting on a hunch, Manager John Morison put Radford who never had played with the Boston club, into center field. Radford batted in the line that won that day's game.
Boston went on to take the series, the winning streak started in Detroit didn't stop until Boston won the

Rookie Third Sacker Picked To Cure Red's Holdover Headache

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—(AP)—A small package containing one midget ball player, consigned to Cincinnati, may be the cure the Reds need for a very bad headache.
The headache, it seems, was contracted when Cincy bought a whole ball club to get one promising rookie. That rookie, fitted but the club the next season produced another prospect that promises to make the original investment pay a good return.
Chic Cuccinello is the new youngster who is counted upon to make Redville forget the disappointment over the failure of Jersey Joe Stripp to come up to expectations.
The hope is that the Reds decided to buy the Columbus franchise of the American Association two years ago after finding that the price on Stripp alone represented a sizeable portion of the value of the whole club.
Stripp was not a big success, but while he was falling down Young Cuccinello, alternating between second and third, was setting the A. A. on fire.
Furthermore, Chic finished second among the big thumping troupe in the A. A. last year. He whaled the ball at a .358 clip, getting 56 doubles, ten triples and 20 homers. And that tolerably good swatting for a fellow who weighs only 155 pounds.
Chic, a native of Astoria, N. Y., signed with Syracuse in the International league in 1926. He was farmed out to Lawrence in the New England loop where he batted .283. For the same club in 1927, he batted .310.
Going to Danville in the Three-I circuit in 1928 he again hit .310 and late in the summer was bought by Columbus where he batted .396 in 14 games.
Chic bats right handed. His first name is Anthony. Yet they call him Chic.

Indian Goes Back To Outdoor Life

Mohawk Lives In Wigwam With Dog As His Only Companion.
ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20.—A few hundred feet from Albany, a city of more than 100,000 persons, Floyd H. Hitchcock, a full-blooded Mohawk Indian, has made his home. Like his forefathers, "Flower of the Swamps," his Indian name, lives in a wigwam, with only a dog as a companion.
Five years ago Hitchcock decided he'd live his present life. Prior to that he married an Irish girl, who bore him two sons. Both now are members of the Albany police force.
"This is my life," he declared. "It is the life I love; the life of the forest and the streams. I am happy here, more than I would be in the city. I was brought up as an Indian runner."

Coachin' the Cochins

"Swell out your chests and look nice for the cameraman, and you might win a prize at the poultry show," is what Miss Linda Schmidt is telling these two buff Cochins chickens. One is a heavyweight and the other a bantam, and they were both contenders for honors at the recent Los Angeles Midwinter Poultry Show.

"Flower of the Swamps," which I have adopted as my own."
The 55-year old Indian's home is located on the fringe of a woods only 300 feet from the Dominican monastery. An old oak tree, which once marked an Indian trail, is nearby. "Flower of the Swamps" lost his parents when quite young, and an old Iroquois brought him up as a runner. However, he later drifted among the whites and worked as a painter, laborer, bridge worker and finally as a stage driver for the government. He arrived in Albany in 1905 and married seven years ago and his wife separated. He is unwilling to discuss his family affairs.
"This is my real life. I shall never go back to the old."

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

Heinie Mueller, the man who once built a better chicken coop than any other man could build, but had to tear the coop apart to get it out of his cellar, wonders why some major league club hasn't brought him back to the big show for 1939. Heinie hit .385 for Buffalo last year, after the Braves had cut him adrift. He'd just as soon play with the St. Louis Browns this year.
The breach between Rogers Hornsby and Branch Rickey seems to have been completely healed.
In 1926 they were bitter enemies. One day last summer Hornsby was passing Rickey's box in the St. Louis park and he looked up and said, "Hello, there, Branch." And Rickey was so taken aback that he invited Hornsby to his office for a visit sometime.
The next day, the day after, it was on Hornsby's recommendation that Rickey gave Mickey O'Neill, the catcher, another shot at the big show this year.

Il Duce? No, He's "King's Cousin"

Here is a new and striking camera study of Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy. He is wearing the Collar of the Annunziata, which gives him the title of "King's Cousin." It's just an old Italian custom—and an additional honor for the premier.

Shires Tells of His First Fight

Quite Naturally, Was In His Home Town of Italy, Texas.
It seems that Art Shires' first fight, quite naturally, was in his home town of Italy, Texas. And, as Maff in the St. Paul Dispatch relates it: "Art and his friends were storming down the street amusing themselves by shooting Roman candles at passers-by. One big, tough egg from a neighboring town announced publicly that any kid that pointed one of those things at him would be knocked silly." "Of course," said Art, "I've never been a guy to go out of my way for a fight, but I could always take care of myself, see—so I goes up to this mug and fires the candle right at him. Well, the next day when we appeared before the mayor to answer charges, that guy looked like a freight train had hit him."

Children Like this Safe Prescription

Coughs and Sore Throat Relieved Almost Instantly.
Stop children's coughs and sore throats before these ailments lead to dangerous ills. Thoxine, a doctor's prescription, now assures relief within 15 minutes to children as well as adults without the danger in the use of patent medicines containing harmful drugs.
Thoxine works on a different principle, goes direct to the source of trouble and relieves the irritation which causes the coughing and sore throat. Ideal for children because it is safe and does not have the usual "nasty-medicine" taste. No gagging. Just ask for Thoxine, put up ready for use in 35c, 60c. and $1.00 bottles. Money back if not relieved. Sold by John P. Cox Drug Co., and all other good drug stores.

Dixie Tennis Stars Are Cage Captains

NASHVILLE, Jan. 21.—(AP)—The Cram brothers of Nashville are tennis-basketball specialists. Kendall, captain and forward of the Hume-Fogg high school five, won the national indoor boys' net title a year ago and was state junior champ two seasons.
Donald, Captain and guard of the Vanderbilt quintet, was Southern intercollegiate tennis titleholder in 1928 and has won the state championship three years.

Charley Paddock To Try Comeback

Training for Southern Pacific Relays At Long Beach, Cal.
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21.—(AP)—Charley Paddock is not yet ready to put away his spiked shoes for good. At least the great sprinter says he isn't.
However, it is going to take more than the mere announcement of his intentions to compete in his 17th consecutive speed campaign to convince coast critics.
If Charley does get out on the cinders and train seriously the question then will be:
Will he be back to try his prowess in the 1932 Olympiad in Los Angeles? Last season when critics on every side predicted the exit of Paddock, he came back as a member of the Los Angeles relay team and assisted in setting two records at Denver in the 400-yard and 880-yard relays, feature events of the national A. A. U. meet.
In 1926 the veteran was clocked no less than five times at 9.6 seconds for the century and was credited with an American record of 9.5 seconds.
Paddock is conditioning himself and hopes to take on the present crop of college champions who were in kindergarten when he began running at the Pasadena high school back in 1914.
Since that time he has competed on three Olympic teams, besides collecting unto himself the greater share of the dash records. Some of these still stand.
Granting that he makes the training grade, Paddock will be a member of the L. A. A. C. sprint relay team, opening his campaign with the Southern Pacific relays at Long Beach, Cal., February 22. He may also enter a number of open races in dual meets with coast universities and colleges.

The West Is in the Saddle!

Senator Joseph Grundy of Pennsylvania recently branded the west as a collection of "backward states," but that was before Senator Grundy saw this picture. It proves conclusively that western statesmen in Washington hold their share, or more, of the really important senatorial committee chairmanships. "Young Bob" LaFollette of Wisconsin, leader of the insurgents, is chairman of the committee on manufactures (1); Borah of Idaho, foreign relations (2); Norris of Nebraska, judiciary committee (3); Hiram Johnson of California, commerce (4); Smoot of Idaho, finance (5); Thomas of Idaho, irrigation and reclamation (6); McFarley of Oregon, agriculture (7); Wesley L. Jones of Washington, appropriations (8); Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, public lands (9); Frazier of North Dakota, Indian affairs. Not a bad record for statesmen from "backward states," is it?

Murphy's Side Show Flavors Big Clash

LAFAYETTE, Ind. Jan. 21.—(AP)—Murphy vs. Murphy—the battle of the "Stretchers!"
This will be one of college basketball's greatest attractions. It is billed for January 30, when the high flying Loyola team of Chicago and the hard hammering Purdue Boilermakers, each led by a Charles "Stretch" Murphy, clash on the hardwoods of Memorial gymnasium.
Each Murphy plays center; each is the ace of his team and each is virtually an unstoppable scorer.
Purdue's Murphy, leading scorer of the Western conference last season, with an all-time record of 143 points in 12 games, has a three inch advantage over Loyola's Murphy.
The Purdue beanpole stands six feet six inches in his basketball shoes.
Murphy of Loyola, however, is a faster man, and is the spark plug defensively and offensively of his team, whose winning streak has extended through 30 games in three seasons.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

The bewitching charm of soft, flattering curves... the lure of a graceful, modern figure... don't spoil it by permitting your eyes to be bigger than your stomach. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. Over-indulgence is not commended—when tempted to over-indulge, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that modern, enchantingly-rounded figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JUDITH CAMELON--marries Arthur Knight, a wealthy young man who is employed in a New York publishing house in which she is employed. They sail for a six-week honeymoon in Europe. Judith is a blonde with an 18-year-old daughter, Tony, who is in Europe, and a son, Arthur, who is at school. A chaperone arrives to announce that Tony Knight is coming home. Arthur tells Judith they must return at once to meet her. Since neither the girl nor any known of the father's whereabouts, Judith is skeptical of her welcome.

Arthur and Judith reach the home of the father, but she has before Tony's last check. Next morning Judith tells her daughter that when they arrive at the home of the father, she will be a young lady and she will be a young lady. Tony is going to get out. Judith, entering the house to see to it that Tony is properly cared for, is surprised to find a young man who she had never seen before. He is a young man who she had never seen before. He is a young man who she had never seen before.

Now go on with the story CHAPTER XVII

TWO events of importance happened in the Knight household the second week following Christmas. One was the coming of Aunt Helena's letter from Paris. The other was the arrival of Andy Craig.

Junior left Tuesday morning. He departed for his second term of school and Judith was frank enough to admit a huge sigh of relief to see him go. Since the episode of the boy's escape had been a trial to her, she had been unable to meet Junior's eyes squarely. She was ashamed, embarrassed and afraid to see what he must be thinking of her.

To her credit it should be set down that Judith, who felt the brunt of the boy's anger, honored him for loyalty to his mother. She had not mentioned the incident to Junior's father and did not intend to.

When Arthur Knight reached home shortly after five o'clock that evening he came in stamping and brushing off snow.

"Where's Tony?" he demanded, in answer to Judith's greeting. "I think she's dressing. Dear. She'll be down shortly."

"Tell Tony I want to see her at once!" Arthur's words were gruff and he snapped out the sentence exactly as though he were in his office and Judith a minor member of the business force.

"I'll send the maid up," she told him. "Is there anything I hope nothing has happened?"

"Nothing happened?" The man raised his brows. "Oh, I knew when I got that cable from Paris that Tony'd been up to devilry. Letter came from Helena this afternoon. Told me the whole story."

Harriet was dispatched to inform Tony her father wished to see her immediately. Fifteen minutes later the girl appeared. She strolled into the living room casually and stopped in the doorway, one hand resting on her hip.

"Did you want to see me, Darling?" she asked, resting languid, smiling eyes on Knight.

"Yes, I did."

Tony had moved toward the reading table and was extracting a cigarette from a large silver box.

"Where's Tony?" he demanded, in answer to Judith's greeting.

"Put that elegant down and come into the study!" her father continued sharply. "I've got a number of things to settle with you, young lady, and we're going to settle them now!"

Tony hesitated. Then, smiling sweetly, she replaced the cigarette in the case and followed Knight into the small room which was known as his study.

The door closed behind them. Judith was worried. It was not often her husband used such a harsh tone with anyone. She was worried, too, because she had no idea to what lengths the younger girl's foolishness might have led.

It was nearly seven o'clock before the study door opened and Arthur Knight and his daughter reappeared. They came out with Tony's arm about her father, her dark head nodding to his shoulder. Both were smiling and they looked as though the interview had been a love feast.

Tony maintained the pose of filial devotion and sweetness throughout the evening meal. She remained with Judith and Arthur when coffee was served in the living room, hovering about her father, bringing him his pipe, the evening newspaper, and placing an ash tray at his convenient reach.

At length Tony suggested hesitantly: "Father, Darling, I just wish I could stay home this evening! I'd have managed to some way if only I'd known you and Judith would be here."

"But, Arthur, you know how she feels toward me!"

"That's all right now. It's all right! Tony and I talked everything over. She isn't going to make any trouble from now on. Tony's agreed to stop running around nights, stay at home and behave herself."

"Yes, sir," he mused contentedly. "Guess I'll have to get off a letter to Helena tomorrow and tell her a thing or two. Really I'm sure she misrepresents affairs."

Arthur Knight looked such a picture of satisfaction just then that the girl did not voice her misgivings.

"Bye-bye," she called gaily from the hallway. Then the door closed upon her.

Judith could hardly resist asking questions but she forced herself to wait. Arthur would tell her all about it, given his time.

He did. Tony had been gone only a few minutes before the man settled back comfortably in his chair, removed his pipe from his lips, blew the smoke swirling toward the ceiling.

"You know, Tony's really a sweet kid," he told his wife. "Crazy littleascal has been getting into scrapes all her life, but she never means anything by it. Now take this row with Helena."

Tony's Aunt Helena had written her brother very pointedly, it seemed. She had said that the width of the Atlantic ocean was none too broad as a barrier between herself and the niece she had so recently been chaperoning. She had even implied that Tony's escapades, culminating in an affair with a good-looking named Mickey Mortimer, were the talk of the American colony and a disgrace on the family honor.

AUNT HELENA had wound up with the declaration that not for love or money would she undertake responsibility for Tony Knight again.

"But that's all right," Arthur pointed out to Judith. "Because I've persuaded the kid to stay right here all winter. Home's the place for her, you know, and now you're here, Judith, you can look after her."

"But, Arthur, you know how she feels toward me!"

who had been such a faithful banion for the days of her youth was an entirely different person in New York. Judith had counted on the fact that she was to vary this. It was a surprise to her when she found that she was to vary this. It was a surprise to her when she found that she was to vary this.

The two years preceding, which he had lived at the time, made it easy for Knight to slip the habit of spending longer hours in his study. He would return evenings and to frame memoranda for the next conference or study a correspondence.

Now that he had acquired a tractive wife, reopened his home and could find time for evening a good dinner, companionship and every relaxation from the day's work, Knight was less and less inclined to suggest the opera, library or concert.

Those things were all right, you got to see. Judith had been able to get her own way in the matter before, but now she was to battle through the same old story and a half was too much for her. Judith, therefore, was dreading days and evenings too more confined in the four walls her new home.

NEITHER the girl nor her husband knew at that time that Tony Knight arrived home one evening she had promised to "in-early." It was some time before she had retired. Tony, tired of the next morning as usual, surprised Judith though by appearing at 11:30 in a knitted sport dress.

It was unusual to see Tony such an hour of the day and it was unusual also to see her about the house in anything but negligee garments.

Furthermore, the girl announced she would have breakfast on stairs instead of in her room. All she wished was coffee and fruit. It was a good sign, perhaps, that she actually did intend to live up to her program of reform.

Thirty minutes later Judith turned to the dining room. She had finished eating and she had heard a cry from the stairs. "Why, Andy! Andy! Andy! when did you get here?"

Judith hesitated. Tony was evidently welcoming a caller. She heard a man's laugh and rumbling, indistinct answer. She would go into the living room, of course, Judith thought. She decided to slip through the hall and up the stairway where several doors awaited.

She stepped to the hall entrance, saw too late that Tony and her companion had both turned at the sound.

"Oh--Judith," said the younger girl. "This is Andy Craig. Andy's an old, old friend and father's friend of perfection in modern youth. Andy--my stepmother."

Judith went forward smiling. "How do you do, Mr. Craig? I'm glad to know any of Tony's friends."

Andy Craig laughed easily. He was so tall he seemed to fill the hallway. He still wore his topcoat but had pulled on a fat hat to reveal brilliant, close-cropped red hair. Andy Craig had blue eyes, very light blue, which were filled with good humor.

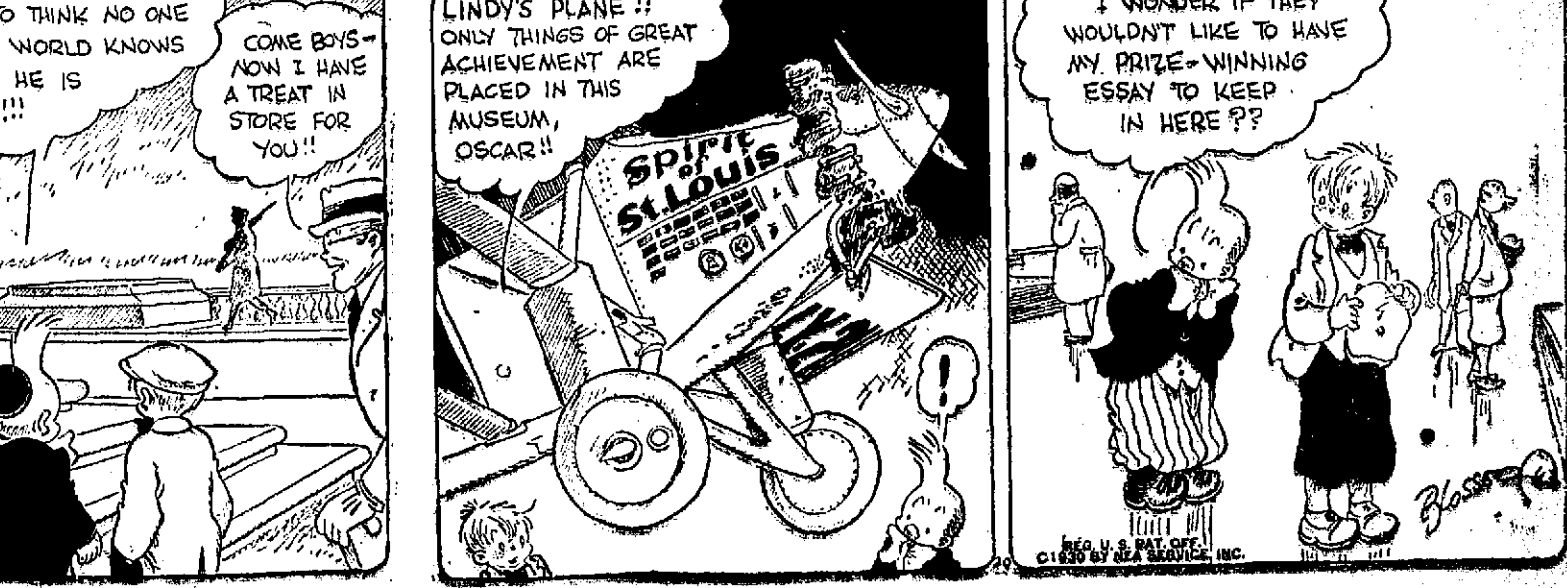

"I'm--I'm awfully glad to know you, Mrs. Knight," he said and then he stopped short.

U. S. Shaker In Big London Bar

Many "Gadgets" on Cocktail Implement Made in America.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Manufacture of liquor in the United States, except for medicinal purposes, is illegal but making of cocktail shakers and hip pocket flasks is not.

People who visit the Savoy bar are showing a great deal of interest in the half-gallon shaker made in American patrons. They wonder at the workmanship on an article supposedly not used in America.

In the large cocktail shaker there is a lemon squeezer in the lid, an ice breaker, a graduated dial to show how full it is, a little window through which you can see the color of the cocktail, a thermometer to register its exact temperature and numerous other gadgets.

Frozen North Gives Rigorous Test to Army Fighting Planes

FIGHTING their way across frozen prairies and mountains of the Northwestern and Mountain States, 21 airplanes of the United States army are today engaged in an endurance test which subjects the hornets of the air to the severest weather conditions known in this country.

Eighteen pursuit ships, single seaters, and three huge transports comprise the army of the air which faces practically sub-arctic conditions in the 7,000 mile flight from Selfridge field, Michigan, to Spokane, Washington, and return. Forty miles above Bay City, Michigan, on the upper peninsula, the little craft entered the permanent snow-belt of the continent, where old fashioned winter, with all its rigors and dangers, holds sway.

Temperatures of as low as forty degrees below zero were foreseen on the route. Brief winter days mean pre-dawn hours of labor in the cold and the threat of night flying over frozen country, to reach some isolated destination. Bundled in winter flying suits, carrying parachutes, flashlights and emergency rations against the possibil-

Machine Plants Sugar Cane

One of the greatest developments in the sugar cane industry is the recent invention of a machine that plants sugar cane seed stalks. This machine, invented by N. C. Storey of the Duhilberg Sugar Cane Industries Co., Clewiston, Fla., does the work of many men used to plant the cane in the past. A typical crew of planters is shown in the upper photo here. The planter is shown below plowing and setting two furrows simultaneously. Hauled by a tractor, it covers about 15 miles an hour.

"Diagnosing" the Dry Law

A high-light of dry law discussions in Congress was this demonstration given by Representative William J. Sirovich, congressman-physician from New York, in which he "analyzed" prohibition as a "national malady." He is pictured here, center, with a group of fellow-congressmen on the capitol steps in Washington, as he showed from a table full of chemicals and charts the effect of poison-liquor on the human body. In the House he introduced a bill to legalize 2.75 beer, sought an investigation of dry enforcement in New York, and named four prohibition officials who, he said, had grown wealthy from graft.

Kansas Citian Is Collector

M. A. Gill Lines Walls of Home With Celebrated "Irons"

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 21.—The market price on handcuffs is usually on the advance when M. A. Gill of this city is in the vicinity. He is the leading collector of "cuffs," thumb-cuffs, navy irons and manacles in the United States.

Hundreds of these adorn the walls of the home, making his collection the most valuable of its kind in the world. Included in the unique display of torture instruments are 55 handcuffs, each of which has been locked about the wrists of a murderer. The oldest handcuff in the collection, was made in 1620.

A pair of Palmer's navy irons, patented in 1876, which came out of the prison cell of the battleship Maine adorn one corner of the room. They were purchased by Gill at an auction at Brooklyn navy yard.

To Gill, the most interesting pair of handcuffs in the collection is that used to murder Sheriff Homer Teaff of Muskogee, Okla., on June 24, 1922. John Welch, a negro prisoner in the custody of Teaff, killed the sheriff by beating him over the head with the "cuffs" and escaped.

Welch was freed from the irons by his wife who chopped through the connecting chain with an ax, and then tried open the jaws of the handcuffs after attempting to file through one of them.

The negro then buried the body of the sheriff and the pair of handcuffs in a swamp where they were found. Five hundred men trailed the killer more than two weeks before he was captured. Gill tried several months to get the handcuffs and was finally successful, at the Kansas Peace Officers' convention held in Wichita, Kan., this fall.

Year's Dead Letters Give U. S. $250,000

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—(AP)—More than 23,000,000 undelivered letters were buried in 1929 in the dead letter departments of the post office and $250,000 thereby reverted to the United States treasury.

That amount represented money received in mail coming to the offices, and the proceeds from the sale of undeliverable articles of value.

An odd assortment of articles found their way to the dead letter offices. Narcotics were secreted in magazines and papers; silk hose and lingerie essayed travel under encircling periodicals.

An infernal machine, revolvers peering cautiously from the lids of best sellers, a human skull suggestive of a Borcho head hunter, and an arsenal of arms were among the "dead letters."

Letters usually reach the dead letter offices after they have been held in other post offices two weeks. They are opened here with a lightning cutter, capable of handling 50,000 pieces or mail a day.

Money is held for a year, and then, if delivery cannot be made, goes to the treasury.

A tip . . . from Andrew Carnegie

ASKED to explain his phenomenal success, Andrew Carnegie blandly attributed it to his ability to get men to work for him who knew more than he did.

And that's a formula for success. Nobody who is really successful does all the work himself. He employs other people's minds and efforts.

Do you do the same in the intricate business of running your home and taking care of your family? You can, quite easily.

You can employ specialists in diet; you can serve the master dishes of famous chefs; you can have the advice of style authorities in selecting your clothes, of whole electrical laboratories in buying household appliances, by reading the advertisements.

All the newest knowledge—knowledge millions of dollars and years of effort have won—is contained in the advertisements.

If you will use the advertisements in this newspaper as Andrew Carnegie used men who knew more than he did, every dollar you spend will be spent wisely, economically, and will return full measure of satisfaction. That's the way to be a success in the greatest business in the world—making a home.

It pays to read the advertisements.

If it's wanted or needed— it's in our Want ads!
